Why do you need an optical comparator?

Optical comparators are customizable.

Optical comparators do not require operator certification.

Optical comparators can be used in a lab or on the shop floor.

Optical comparators require no special power or air connections.

Optical comparators are perfect for quick, simple and precise 2D measurements.

Optical comparators are very budget friendly and can be purchased for as little as $5500.

Optical comparators don't require contact measurement (this is perfect for small intricate parts).

Which Optical Comparator is right for you?

What is the size of the part you are inspecting?

Do you require digital readouts on your comparator?

We offer digital readouts from Mitutoyo Fagor.

Will the comparator be used in the shop or in an inspection room?

Would you like a cover for your comparator?
